

THE South-Carolina GAZETTE.

April 20, 1752.

[NUMB. 934.]

LONDON, November 16.

DIED, Mr. George Graham, clock and watch maker, at his house in Fleet-street.—He was born at Gratzwick, an obscure village in the north of Cumberland, in the year 1675, and in 1688, came up to London, but was not put apprentice to Mr. Tompion, as is generally said, but after he had been some time with another master, Mr. Tompion received him into his family purely for his merit, and treated him with a kind of parental affection till he died.—That Mr. Graham was, without competition, the most eminent of his profession, is but a small part of his character; he was the best mathematician of his time, and had a compleat knowledge of practical astronomy; so that he not only gave to various movements for the measurement of time, a degree of perfection which had never before been attained, but he invented several astronomical instruments by which considerable advances have been made in that science; he made great improvements in those which had before been in use, and by a wonderful manual dexterity, constructed them with greater precision and accuracy than any other person in the world.—The great mural arch in the observatory at Greenwich was made for Dr. Halley, under his immediate inspection, and divided by his own hand; and of this incomparable original, the best instruments of the kind in France, Spain, Italy, and the West-Indies, are copies made by the English artist. The sector, by which Dr. Bradley first discovered two new motions in the fix'd stars, was his invention and fabric. He comprized the whole planetary system within the compass of a small cabinet, from which, as a model, all the modern orreries have been constructed. And when the French academicians were sent to the North, a few years ago, to make observations in order to ascertain the figure of the earth, they thought Mr. Graham the fittest person to furnish them with instruments; they accordingly succeeded, performing their work in one year, so that by a subsequent observation in France, Sir Isaac Newton's theory was confirmed.—But the academicians who went to the South, not taking Mr. Graham's instruments, were very much embarrassed and retarded.—He was many years a member of the Royal Society, to which he communicated several ingenious and important discoveries, particularly a kind of horary alteration of the magnetic needle; a quicksilver pendulum, and many curious particulars relating to the true length of the simple pendulum, upon which he continued to make experiments till a few days before his death.

Boston, March 9. By a letter from Halifax dated the 1st of last month we learn, that 700 Germans are going to settle at Mallagash harbour, twelve leagues to the Westward of Halifax, early this spring.—It is also said, that 700 men will be put on the king's works at Halifax sometime this month.

Paris, Dec. 27. According to a new list of our navy, it consists of five eighty gun ships; seventeen of seventy-four guns; twenty-four of sixty-four; five of fifty-four, three of fifty, besides pinks, ketches and fire-ships.

London, Jan. 1. We hear that the East-India company are concerting the most proper measures, for increasing as well as securing their trade at China, and to prevent any sudden surprize on that part of the country.

They write from Toulon, that a body of 1200 regular troops is arrived there, in order to embark in some of the men of war sitting out in that port; but they give no hints concerning their destination.

London, Jan. 2. The lady of Capt. Franklin is brought to bed of a daughter at his house in Old Bond-street, Piccadilly.

There is much talk that an act of insolvency will pass the house before this session of parliament breaks up.

Yesterday we had an account that a Spanish man of war, commanded by Commodore Stuart has taken an Algerine man of war of 60 guns, off Cape St. Vincent, which immediately after being taken, sunk; but 300 men were put on board the Span. ship: Another Algerine, who was in company with the above, escaped.

London, Feb. 20. A bill is order'd into parliament for amending an act of last sessions for correcting the calendar.

Feb. 22. We hear from Lisbon, that a demand has been made on the British merchants resident there, by that court, to produce their books, in order, as it is presumed, to be thereby informed of the nature and advantages of that trade, by knowing what sums of money they remit home to England on the balance. That upon this account received here, the Portugal merchants waited on his majesty with an authentic account of the transaction, and that his majesty was most graciously pleased to promise to consider their case, with his usual paternal care and attention to the affairs of commerce, and we hear that lord Tyravley will be sent ambassador on the occasion.

Paris, Feb. 17. Wednesday last arrived the Nancy, Countess, from South-Carolina: She made her voyage in three months and 20 days, was 32 days on her passage out, and just as many home. The quickest voyage ever known from this town. She has brought home 760 barrels of rice, &c.
